Sacramento agencies join West Sac police in war on prostitution

Three area law enforcement agencies announced last week that they will work together to combat prostitution in the Sacramento/West Sacramento region.

The West Sacramento Police Department, Sacramento County Sheriff's Department and Sacramento Police Department announced they will share officers, intelligence and equipment while trying to curb prostitution (and related drug activity) in hot spots such as West Capitol Ave. in West Sacramento, Stocton Blvd. and Broadway in Sacramento, and Auburn Blvd. in the unincorporated part of Sacramento County.

The joint task force took place in two simultaneous "sting" operations last Wednesday evening, said Sgt. Ray Hensley of the West Sacramento Police Dept. The sting lasted from about 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. near West Capitol Ave. and local motels.

The operation targeting "johns," or customers of prostitutes, netted 13 men.

The operation targeting prostitutes, using "decoy" customers, led to the arrest of 10 women.

With the exception of one suspect who was limited to a wheelchair and therefore presented an additional challenge while in custody, all of those in custody spent at least a brief time in jail, said Hensley.

School trustees delay approval of money deal involving city, builders

School board discussion of an agreement between the Washington Unified School district, the City of West Sacramento and two residential developers planning to build homes in Southport (the city's southern half) was postponed until a special meeting next Tuesday evening.

The agreement covers the payment of developer fees to cover the impact to the school district of the first 1,700 units to be constructed by the Southport Gateway and Gainsborough projects.

Under the agreement, which is supported by school district administration, the home-builders will pay $5,000 per unit built directly to the school district to help it finance the needed new school facilities and related costs. The City of West Sacramento would pay an additional $3,000 per unit (for a total payment from the city of $5,100,000) to the district.

The source of the city funds (or whether they might be repaid to the city by other parties) was not available at press time.

Also as part of the agreement (a "Memorandum of Understanding"), the properties involved would be exempted from any additional future assessment districts formed to help pay for school districts.

The issue was re-scheduled from last night's agenda to a special school board meeting at 7 p.m. in the district office, 930 Westacre Rd., on Jan. 30.

Former RCHS baseball standout hopes to create local club, teach Latino youth the difference between a putt & a drive

■ Joining effort with Sacramento organization, Javier Ortiz works towards bringing golf to youth who otherwise would never get an opportunity to try the sport

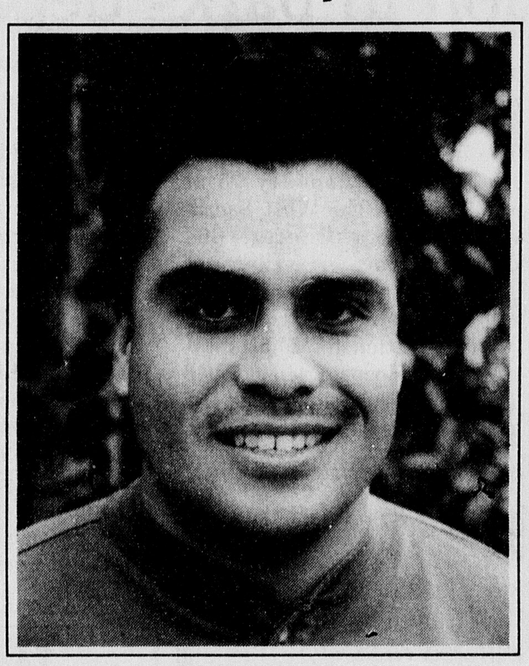
A River City High graduate hopes to start a local chapter of Sacramento's Latino Junior Golf Club Association, bringing the opportunity to learn golf to West Sacramento youths age eight to 18.

"I'm starting the chapter," said Javier Ortiz, who expects to serve as president of the board of the new, non-profit group. "We got the go-ahead from the Latino Junior Golf Club last week, and Lighthouse Golf Course (in West Sacramento) has welcomed us with open arms."

Ortiz, nicknamed "Hardy," is a 1984 graduate of West Sacramento's River City High School. A golfer himself, Ortiz had a distinguished high school baseball career, holding the team's "Most Valuable Player" award three years in a row.

He hopes to help athletics become a positive force in some other West Sacramento kids' lives.

"We're trying to target the kids who wouldn't normally have the opportunity to get involved in this sport through normal channels," he said.



Javier Ortiz

For $60 per child, players will receive eight weeks of lessons and eight weeks of practice sessions. Lighthouse Golf Course will provide the golf balls.

Ortiz is soliciting support for the league from local schools and civic officials.

"I'm hoping they will want to get this out to the kids," he commented.

He hopes to start the first round of instruction in June, and in the mean time is looking for people willing to help serve on the board of directors of the new club.

Ortiz hopes the West Sacramento club will mirror the success of the Sacramento club, which has grown from three kids to a hundred kids in three years.

Don Oropeza, who helped found the Sacramento Latino Junior Golf Club Association, is working closely with Ortiz on starting the West Sacramento chapter.

Anyone interested in getting more information on the youth program, or volunteering to help organize it, may reach Ortiz at 371-3905.

West Sac will find out next month if state will help finance Jefferson improvements

■ If all goes well, the state will approve partial funding of improvements to Jefferson Blvd. and its bridge next month, setting the stage for construction to begin in the fall of the year 2000.

By Steve Marschke

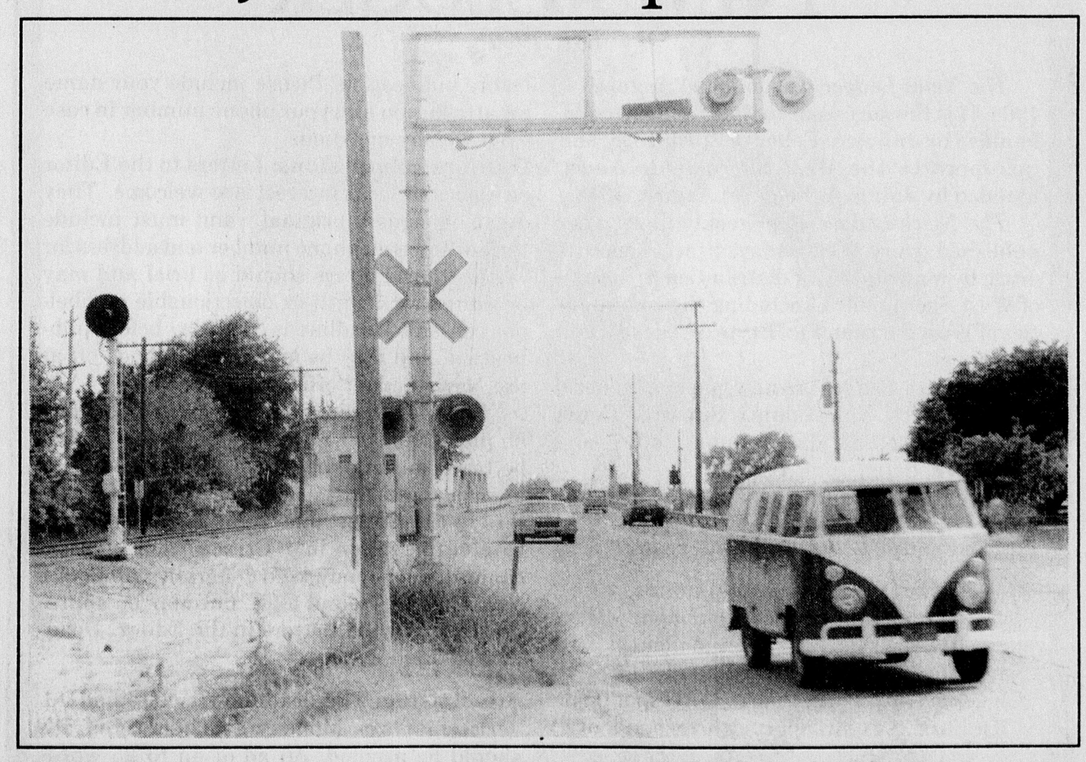
While West Sacramento vigorously pursues a financing plan for a new bridge over its barge canal from Southport to Industrial Blvd., it is also trying to lay the groundwork for improvements to the existing Jefferson Blvd. corridor and bridge.

This $24.8 million project is second in line within Yolo County, as part of a list of preferred projects for which the regional Sacramento Area Council of Governments (SACOG) is trying to attract state financing. First in line in Yolo County is an improvement project for the Mace Blvd. interchange in Davis.

The California Transportation Commission disburses state monies for such projects every seven years, but has had to trim its allotments because state revenues have not been as high as anticipated in recent years.

"The CTC has to cut about $500 million out of a $5 billion program," said Gary Keill, a senior planner with SACOG.

Keill added that West Sacramento has requested funding to come through in the year "when they think they'll be ready to go to construction," which will be in the last half of the year 2000.



Looking south across the Jefferson Blvd. bridge (some improvements have been made to rail crossing)

The highest-ranked Yolo County project in line for state assistance is the Mace Blvd. freeway interchange in the city of Davis

Improvements to Jefferson -- which are planned to include building two more lanes next two the present two lanes of the Jefferson Blvd. bridge, and expanding much of the rest of the road (which is also known as State Highway 84) between US 50 and Marshall Road.

The city has split the project into two parts in order to give the state the option of trimming their proposal rather than simply trash-canning the whole thing if funds are tight, said Keill.

Improvements between Higgins Road and the freeway (a stretch which includes the bridge) are anticipated to cost $21,220,000, said Keill.

Improvements south from Higgins to Marshall Road comprise the second part of the project, and are expected to cost $3,550,000.

If the state agrees to keep the Jefferson project on its list for funding, said Keill, the city will still half to match funds for the project and pay half the costs.

The Jefferson project first made the SACOG list in 1990, and was originally scheduled for construction in 1996-97.

Commentary:

Adventures with the trash & an ode to the garbage man

By T.J. Smoot

Sometimes you've got to hand it to those Thacatherans[1]. I mean, when it comes to waste management, they have quite an interesting system. In case you don't know, if you live in the right place, you get this huge 90 gallon trashcan that you can never fill up with normal stuff, and on trash day the trash truck automatically picks it up with huge claws and dumps the contents into the truck. Any and all leaves, grass, and sticks can be swept into the street gutter. Then on the appointed day, a gargantuan, yellow, transforming-looking-backhoe-type-of-monster lowers its sideways claws to the street and gets a scraping run at your little pile of biodegradable lawn stuff (and an occasional 2 X 4, toy, or sleeping cat), scoops it up and races off to a dump truck where it unloads and quickly returns to the next pile. It's quite a sight, that is, if you like stuff like that.

So you can understand my concern when we moved here to see trash collecting done the old fashioned way: The Grunt and Lift method. They had the big purple truck and all, but this poor guy drove every 60 feet to stop at five or six trashcans and had to heft each one up into the bin by himself. This made me think of the days when I was a kid, watching three "big ol' garbage men" in work boots, gloves, hats, and blue-striped overalls waddling down the street to pick up the galvanized lidless trashcans and seeing how much noise they could make at seven a.m. by tossing the empties onto the pavement. If you were lucky, they would activate the big hydraulic ram in front of you and smoosh all the junk into the front of the truck. But in West Sacramento, I'd always felt sorry for our Mr. Trashman (Mr. T). He was forever in a hurry, and my back would ache when I saw him working like a beaver in September. I'd often thought of getting up some morning to thank him with a gift for his dedication to duty, but I could never roust myself up for that occasion. I did actually meet him once early in the morning, but it was only by accident.

Every husband knows there is nothing that motivates him to action like the gentle phrase sleepily whispered to him in the wee morning hours..."Honey, is the trash out?" I awoke to these tender words one trash morn with the whine and growl of the big purple beast echoing not far down the street. I flung off the covers, flew into my flip-flops and fled to the back of the house, clad only in my tee shirt and (zebra) boxers. Humming the theme from "Raiders of the Lost Ark," I grabbed the big beige canister with lightning speed, unlocked the gate with the dexterity of a craftsman, and rolled our contribution to the dump out onto the sidewalk. I was met there by Mr. T and my elderly neighbor with whom I exchanged a cordial greeting. She grinned broadly (I doubt she'd ever seen zebra boxers before), and I tried very hard to be professional. Even Mr. T showed his pearly whites. "You sure do good work!" I beamed, bravely trying to deflect their attention from my attire while holding the lid modestly in front of my midsection. We didn't exchange business cards, but we did meet.

Now that Mr. T has an automated claw system like his counterpart in Thacather, I'm sure he's gotten a little more pudgy around the middle like the rest of us guys, and frankly, I feel better for him. He can look forward to retirement with an intact lower back. The new system took a little getting used to, but I was delighted to know that I could dump leaves and grass in our old canisters while using the new green ones provided by the city for regular trash. Apparently these would be disposed of in the old-fashioned way by the Grunt and Lift method. So one day I packed our old cans with wet leaves, grass, and vines and happily rolled them out to the curb. The next morning I was in for a rude awakening. A smart little paper note hung from my grass canister that had little empty boxes situated next to various messages such as, "Drink more milk," "Keep your thermostat down to 72 degrees in the winter," and "Don't forget to floss today." It was a gentler and kinder way to communicate concern for the community. It didn't take me long to discover which message was for me. It had a two-inch high check in its box. The message read, "TOO HEAVY." This took a second to register. As I staggered to roll the 200 lb. trashcan back to the house, I grunted to no one in particular, "What a wimp...must be the replacement guy. Mr. T would've lifted it."

Assemblyman Hannigan outlines his goals for his last year in office

By Assemblyman Tom Hannigan

Despite the current power struggles and leadership changes in the State Assembly, I am clear on the goals I want to advance before my final term in public office expires on December 1.

The plight of public education will continue to be my primary focus during this year's session. Our school teachers are struggling against great odds to provide the children of California with an education that will allow them to compete in our modern job market.

Most immediate, I will work hard to pass a bond measure on the March ballot to provide $3 billion in funding to finance critically needed new construction and renovation of public schools and universities.

Other priorities include:

Biotechnology: Continue to build on the momentum of luring high-tech and biotechnology firms to locate along the Interstate 80 corridor. Specially, I have authored legislation, AB 366, to provide state tax breaks for firms that have a majority of their manufacturing capacity and employees located in California. The tax changes are needed four our region to compete on global basis for these high-paying job producers.

Capitol Corridor: The economy of Solano and Yolo counties is now largely dependent on moving people and goods on Interstate 80. The freeway is nearing its limit for expansion, making transportation options like the Capitol Corridor trains critical. I will continue to work on improvements to the current three daily train schedule in order to make the service a more attractive means of travel.

911 calls: I am introducing a bill that will increase the effectiveness of the cellular 911 response system. Cellular phones has increased dramatically over the last ten years, creating problems on how our cellular 911 emergency calls are handled. I will work to ensure that people can receive the same dependable and accurate 911 service with their cellular pones as they get with their land line phones.

Government efficiency: I will continue to pursue efforts to "downsize" state government

The Sports Insider

Who is going to win their fifth Super Bowl ring? Will it be the Dallas Cowboys or Pittsburgh Steelers?

These two teams will meet on Sunday, Jan. 29, at 3:20 p.m. in Tempe, Arizona, on the 30th birthday of the Super Bowl.

The Cowboys arrived in Phoenix last Sunday as two-touchdown favorites -- the third-highest spread in Super Bowl history.

The highest point spread (18 points) was covered last year when the 49ers blew out the Chargers 49-26, but the second highest spread was 16 points in Super Bowl III.

That was the year Joe Namath guaranteed the AFC New York Jets would beat the NFC Baltimore Colts. Namath led the Jets to victory that day and convinced the world that the American Football League could beat the powerful National Football League, which had won the first two Super Bowl games with lopsided victories by Vince Lombardi and the Green Bay Packers.

The next two years, the AFC Kansas City Chiefs won the Super Bowl and the rivalry was born!

Here we are in 1996, and Super Bowl XXX is waiting for the AFC to win their first game since 1983, when the Los Angeles Raiders beat the Washington Redskins. Here's my last pick of the NFL season:

Dallas 28, Pittsburgh 24.

I picked Dallas because everybody knows I love the 49ers and this season I haven't been picking winners very often, so I'll just put the old jinx on the Cowboys and enjoy the game! Go Steelers!

Good news for 49er fans! The 49ers are planning to hire ex-coach Bill Walsh to work with the offense next season.

The Sacramento Kings (22-14) are still in second place behind Seattle by four games. The Kings have won six straight at the Arco Arena, but with Walt Williams struggling, they need someone to come from the bench and pick up the offense. Mitch Richmond will be one of four players to compete in the Fleer Shootaround during the All-Star weekend Feb. 10th in San Antonio.

Enjoy your Super Bowl party!

See ya next week!!

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

A correction

Correction:

Over the last two weeks, this space was devoted to a discussion of the planned financing for a new bridge over the barge canal in West Sacramento.

The News-Ledger questioned the appropriateness of two residential developers committing their land to finance this bridge, given that it did not appear designed to serve their future residents (the ones who would end up paying the tax) very well. One of the points raised was that a planned change to the city general plan would allow truck terminals as a permitted use on Southport Industrial Park and Port of Sacramento property, which will use this same bridge. Residential drivers using this bridge would, among other things, find themselves mixing with that industrial truck traffic.

This statement about the change to the general plan was in error, as a city official points out. Although the change to the general plan will affect the Port of Sacramento's property as stated, the Southport Industrial Park already has the right to house new trucking terminals and will not be affected by this change.

The News-Ledger regrets the error.

For further discussion on the subject of this financing proposal, please read on to the comments by city finance director Leigh Keicher elsewhere on this page.

Every little bit counts.

If you want to solve society's main problems, and West Sacramento's main problems, you've got to start with the youth.

The city is fortunate to have a number of people who try to do this, both within the schools and without.

The city has a very active parks department. It has a youth "diversion" program designed to steer at-risk kids away from trouble after their first minor brushes with the law.

And it has some folks working to bring more sports opportunities to the young.

One example mentioned as a small news item recently was the local River City Rowing Club, working (successfully, it appears) to bring the competitive sport of "crew" to teens from River City High and other area high schools.

Now, we learn that the Latino Junior Golf Club is working on a local chapter to bring golf at Lighthouse to West Sacramento youths eight to 18 years old.

Best of luck.

News-Ledger editorial 'misleading and inaccurate'

By Leigh P. Keicher
Director of Finance
City of West Sacramento

Your editorial January 17, 1996, regarding the Palamidessi Bridge made several misleading and inaccurate points which most likely will confuse those familiar with the project and antagonize those who are not. Part of our responsibility in local government is to explain and clarify issues so that elected officials can receive informed comment from the community they represent. Accordingly, I wish to take this opportunity to set the record straight.

The assumptions underlying the city's efforts to build the Palamidessi Bridge are that increased economic activity and public safety will benefit the existing community and that new development will pay its own way.

The subjects you discussed in your editorial, trucking, bridge financing and Mello-Roos are important for a successful bridge financing. Concerning the specific points you raised:

1. Under existing land use regulation, truck terminals are allowed in heavy industrial and waterfront industrial zones in Southport Industrial Park without a conditional use permit and elsewhere with a permit. The suggested change is to eliminate this required permit in these other areas, such as in port-owned property adjacent to Southport Industrial Park.

2. All subdivisions, including Gainsborough and Gateway, are required to have adequate infrastructure and other public improvements before building permits are allowed. Moreover, each subdivision is required to pay its "fair share" of the cost for this infrastructure, although not always in the same way. If sufficient roadway capacity exists, for example, fees are collected to finance future improvements for expansion such as the widening of Jefferson Blvd. If not, then the subdivision may be required to construct certain capacity enhancing improvements. Wants arbor back

I would like to request the assistance of your readers in locating my rose arbor. I live at 2004 Maryland Court. On the late evening of January 20 or early a.m. of the 21st, my rose arbor in the front of my property was taken. It is quite large and is white in color.

There was a party going on in Maryland Court the evening of January 20. If anyone at that party happened to notice this petty theft in progress, I would appreciate your assistance as well.

I can identify this arbor, so please stop by my place if you have seen one pop up recently where there was non before.

Thank you for your help.

I am a baby boomer and I have lived in West Sacramento all my life, and I'm totally ashamed of how West Sacramento decorated itself for Christmas.

You go to the outlying areas, and they were beautiful. Even Elk Grove, which I thought would never beat West Sacramento at anything, looked great this year. . .

Notices have been posted around town that there will be public dances in the town hall every Saturday night that will last all night till daybreak Sunday morning. The "Wild Life" Orchestra is announced to furnish music and after many inquiries nothing else could be found out about the promoters of these dances. Presumably the town hall trustees know who the promoters are and will be careful not to get any rough characters around the hall.

Jack Stoutenburg was the victim of a daring robber last Wednesday, when his home was entered during his absence in Woodland in company with Constable Buckingham. The marauder got away with about $100 worth of Jack's personal belongings, which included two pairs of drawers, one shirt, two razors, one hone, one 38 caliber revolver, two coats, a can of baking powder and a roll of butter. The drawers were returned that evening with the explanation they were too large for any practical purpose and as the robber didn't want blankets he returned the drawers out of pure compassion for the owner. The socks were left on a neighbor's line with a note pinned to them saying they were too large for anything less than a number 14 shoe. Jack is looking for the robber and in the meantime has been forced to purchase new underwear.

His abnormal height was blamed to a great extent for the disease that caused his death. His bereaved father, his only surviving relative, is broken-hearted over his loss. The funeral took place last Thursday in Sacramento.

EARLY ACTION EXPECTED IN ROAD BUILDING IN THIS DISTRICT

All the members of the Board of Supervisors of Yolo County, except Supervisor Gladney, spent the greater part of yesterday viewing the roadways of this district of the county.

The principal object of their visit was to view the land at Sixth and Ann Streets that is to be taken over from the Parkinson block and Henley in order that a wide turn may be made at Sixth and Ann Streets.

After a short session with the property owners the deals were completed and the supervisors went on their way to view other portions of the roadway north and south of the town.

North of Washington the road is completed as far as the Sacramento by-pass, but from that point north to Elkhorn the levee road is in a terrible condition.

For the improvement of this stretch a direct tax has been levied on the property owners that should finish the road.

A dredger has been busy for several weeks raising and widening the levee road north of the by-pass. At the present time the dredger is at work at a point in front of the Bandy ranch and it is estimated it will have completed its work in about two weeks.

In the meantime the ranchers are finding a detour to the west necessary and very inconvenient.

Supervisor Leinberger estimates he will be able to finish this road before the end of summer.

South of Washington the road through West Sacramento is in very good condition except for the one bad spot about two hundred yards south of the M Street bridge. A contract has been let for the improvement of this section, but owing to wet weather the contractors have not been able to get in the field.

A peculiar problem confronts the supervisors in the concrete roadway south of the soil laboratory.

A few weeks ago a 20-ton road roller was put to work on this concrete in an effort to break it up. The road roller did not even dent the surface and yet the road is almost impassable because of the great chuckholes that have been worked in the concrete. Temporarily these chuck holes have been filled with macadam, leaving the road passable for automobiles and teams.

At the church in West Sacramento the road turns east to the river levee, joining the latter at Glide's landing and running southward on top of the levee as far as Clarksburg.

Part of the $1,000,000 bond issue voted two years ago in Yolo County still remains to be spent on this roadway and this will be done during the coming summer.

Last Thursday the supervisors viewed this road also with County Surveyor Proctor and acknowledged that immediate relief should be afforded, especially for that portion between the church and Glide's landing.

HANDSOME GIFT MADE TO WASHINGTON CATHOLIC CHURCH

During the past week there was installed in the Catholic Church of Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament a handsome new organ, the gift of Mrs. George K. Rider of Sacramento.

This gift came very appropriately and just in time when most needed. The old organ had been used for several years and was in constant need of repairs. Mrs. Rider, noticing this, made the offer to Rev. Father Marcucci, who immediately signified his willingness to accept the instrument in behalf of the church and to have it duly installed.

For the first time next Sunday the organ will be heard at Mass, and Mrs. Rider wants to be present and has promised to be present to hear its peals with the church filled with people.

The organ is of the latest make and beautifully decorated with hand engraving. Father Marcucci and the members of his flock are extending their heartfelt thanks to Mrs. Rider for this handsome donation.

HAMMAN MUST BE SICK; FOUND NO GRAFT IN YOLO COUNTY

Woodland, Jan. 12.—No evidence of crookedness or graft and no significant irregularities will appear in the official typewritten report of W. D. Hamman, who has completed his expert probe into the business affairs of Yolo County. Hamman discussed his findings with the Yolo County Grand Jury today. He would not disclose the details of what his final report will be other than to remark that "it will not be unusual."

Hamman stated that he had found some "slight discrepancies" in the various offices, but nothing that is glaring. In some instances officials are not adhering strictly to the law, but the variance has been probably through misunderstanding of the law and has not been serious, according to the expert.

Hamman specifically stated, "there has been no crookedness and no graft."

WARINGS START SUIT FOR RECOVERY OF RAILWAY LANDS

Woodland, Jan. 9.—Ray Waring, former clerk of the Supreme Court, and Robert Waring, former inheritance tax attorney, have employed A. G. Bailey of the firm of Grant & Bailey, to assist them in recovering land condemned eight years ago by the West Side Railroad Company which planned an extensive system in Eastern Yolo County, covering the districts covered by Washington, Lisbon, Clarksburg and down the line. The railroad company failed to consummate the purposes for which the land was condemned and the Warings are now in the Superior Court of this county in a novel piece of litigation in the hope to have their lands returned to them.

ARRESTED FOR PASSING FORGED CHECK ON BEALE COMPANY

G. Apau, a Hawaiian, was before Judge Barry's court last Tuesday forenoon on a charge of forgery and embezzlement for having passed a check on George Beale in the amount of $85.00.

It seems that Apau not only passed the check but even forged a name for it and then endorsed it when it was presented for cashing.

Apau made claim to George Beale that he wanted to pay his boarding house bill in the amount of $35.00, and in addition took $50.00 in cash from the grocery man. He was arrested by Constable Buckingham.

Under the charge he was held over by Judge Barry to answer before the Superior Court under $1000 bonds.

Random House. 291 pages.
For fans of literary biography, here is the life story of one of America's most prolific authors. Starting with the Cat in the Hat, Dr. Seuss created his own universe of ridiculous characters and rhyming stories, helping to instill in the Baby Boom generation at least the germ of an appreciation of poetry. How he did it makes for fascinating reading.

FINANCE

for example, will make improvements outside their subdivision of Jefferson Blvd. at Devon and South River Road. Obviously a single subdivision cannot finance the entire Jefferson widening project. In fact, to the extent these improvements by Gateway already exceed their fair share, they will be reimbursed from fees paid by others. As long as fees are large enough to pay the full cost of infrastructure for all of Southport, and as long as every subdivision pays its share along the way, then there will be no need to ask existing residents to "chip in again."

3. One way to look at Mello-Roos is that it replaces traditional financing rather than enhances it. Prior to Mello-Roos, a subdivision developer would typically borrow all his construction funding from a bank or other lending institution. From this, he would pay fees and/or build the required infrastructure and other public facilities and, finally, the product for sale (homes, office buildings, etc.). The total amount of this construction would be reflected in the price of his product. Mello-Roos bonds allow the developer to lower his construction financing and, accordingly, lower the price of his product which the market forces him to do in order to offset the extra assessments the buyer must pay. In theory, Mello-Roos bond which carry a lower interest rate than bank rates benefit both the developer and buyer equally.

4. The financing plans for the two residential subdivisions, Gainsborough and Gateway, are actually very similar to the plan for Southport Industrial Park. Both begin with a small Mello-Roos tax on raw land which will be used to sell bonds to finance the Palamidessi Bridge. As the properties develop, we assess a larger Mello-Roos tax on the value of the buildings which will be used to sell bonds to finance other infrastructure and public improvements on an "as needed" basis. These include water, sewer, roadway, drainage, parks, schools and so on. By far, the largest source of revenue for these improvements will come from fees collected on building permits.

5. As a final comment, none of the above is unique to West Sacramento. Development is being financed this way all around California and this development is a major contributor to California's improving economy.

Parks innovation

The CPRS District II Administrators have joined together to examine the trends they see taking place in the Parks and Recreation profession through the year 2010. This innovative approach to their profession has never been attempted in District II or in the profession until now.

With the assistance of Facilitator Roylene White, the group discussed and prioritized ten top trends they see impacting the Sacramento Region. Crime and violence, technology and its impacts, and the aging of society are three examples of trends in the Sacramento region that they see impacting their customers and simultaneously impacting the products and services they are to deliver as Parks and Recreation professionals.

Over 20 administrators have participated in some fashion to this point and they have agreed to meet regularly and analyze each trend individually to develop a strategy to address each trend in order to maximize their effectiveness in their particular communities.

District II hopes each and every district in California will follow a similar process resulting in a profession-wide analy-

Local civic lesson

Our Washington Unified School District should begin a local political science class that would require students to attend our city council meetings, etc. The WUSD and/or Sacramento City College students should report back to school staff what they found interesting, confusing and make suggestions for improving our system, especially communications. Between parents and instructors, students could case city council to provide public with agendas detailed and understandable as we had before cityhood with EYCSD.

As for the January 17 City Council meeting, this writer would not have known that One Riverfront Plaza was owned by the Frank Fat family had family members not been present. They wanted a bigger sign and fewer restrictions; e.g., no conditional use permits. The Fat family wanted a big enough sign so that Old Sacramento visitors could see 'em from across the river. They claimed their larger sign would also be "a work of art." How affordable their meals will be remains to be seen. (2nd/final hearing: February 7, 1996.) Much of the agenda indicated City Council was relaxing its rules regarding trucking in apparent response to trucking's earlier threat to move across the river en masse.
